THE GHOSTS OF CROWLEY HALL

Short Synopsis

'The Ghosts of Crowley Hall' is the documentary about the Paranormal Investigation that was carried out at Crowley Hall, England in the summer of 2007. It shows the events of Ghost Hunter Arron Kasady, his team of Investigators and their experience at the hall.

Full Synopsis

There have been many supposed ghost sightings at Crowley Hall in England. During its life, the hall has had a number of paranormal incidents suggesting the presence of ghosts, and there are ghost stories dating back to the 1950's. Recently, a ghost photo was recovered during renovations at the hall, and this prompted a full ghost investigation there.

In early 2007, a small team of paranormal investigators led by Arron Kasady, entered the building to conduct some preliminary tests. Photographs were taken, that produced images of strange orbs in certain rooms, particularly the old children's nursery. Erratic temperature readings were recorded throughout the hall, and the team had the feeling of being constantly watched.

Following on from this initial research, Arron decided to conduct a full investigation into the ghosts that apparently reside at Crowley Hall. Not much is publicly known about the strange phenomena and ghostly sightings that have happened there, so it was a good opportunity to delve into the unknown and tell the story of the Ghosts of Crowley Hall.

A ghost team that included a parapsychologist, spiritual medium and journalist, together with a film crew, spent a night at the hall. Throughout the night, various experiments designed to provoke paranormal activity took place. The centrepiece of the night was a séance, conducted by Arron himself.

However, not everything went as planned. The investigation was abandoned, with the investigation team and film crew returning a few months later to continue what they had started. The whole event was filmed and photographed for the documentary entitled 'The Ghosts of Crowley Hall'.

The Main Film Crew

Director/Producer

Daren Marc

Daren Marc has always wanted to make films ever since picking up a camera and making his first film when he was 12. He has studied graphic design at college, where he directed a couple of music videos using local bands.

He has written various feature length screenplays and short films, before moving to London to study film at the University of North London. During his time there, he worked on various short films, including the gothic horror 'Oras De Vampir', which he wrote and co-directed. Since then he has written, directed and edited the short suspense thriller 'The Storm', about a business woman trapped in her apartment with an unknown assailant. 'The Ghosts of Crowley Hall' is his first feature film.

Writer/Producer

Arron Kasady

Arron Kasady is a screenwriter, producer and, in his spare time, a ghost hunter. An avid film watcher, it was with an English degree in hand and that Arron decided he future lay in writing screenplays. Arron practised in his earlier years by writing scripts for several small comic books created by friends before moving onto the medium of screenwriting.

When his original idea for a collaboration with Daren Marc didn't come to fruition, it was only a matter of time before Arron, with the help of Daren, was able to meld his three favourite pastimes into the 'Ghosts of Crowley Hall'.

THE GHOSTS OF CROWLEY HALL

Singer/Song Writer – LadyAxe

LadyAxe has been part of the Death Metal scene since she was 19, singing alongside bands such as V.O.D. and Stryder in the clubs and bars of South Africa. Recently she directed her first horror movie 'Ukoyika', the story of an Australian tourist who goes missing and meets a bunch of cannibals.

Axe was asked to write and record the main track to the movie 'The Ghosts of Crowley Hall'. As well as performing 'The Invitation' for the movie, she also directed the accompanying music video.

She is currently recording her first solo album entitled 'Fe-Metal', which she is also writing and producing.

Reviews

I'm one of those people that usually don't see many of these ghost shows like 'Ghost Hunters' and 'Paranormal State' because I don't put too much stock into the existence of ghosts, until I watched this film. I was frightened at times with 'The Ghosts of Crowley Hall'. Maybe the reason I was scared during this documentary, was the fact that this event really took place.

Director Daren Marc does a very good job in documenting the failed attempts that Arron Kasady and his team had. Marc doesn't inject himself too much into the film unless he was asked to by Kasady. The team's frightening moments were captured very well. There were a few dead spots there and here, but it's supposed to happen in a documented investigation like this. I liked, how Marc also adds interviews before the attempts as he tries to get a sense of what the main players in the investigation were going through in their minds before entering the haunted halls.

The end result is 'The Ghosts of Crowley Hall' made me believe that ghosts really do exist. Also, I highly recommend this film particularly to fans of these paranormal series that I mentioned in the opening of my review.

* FilmArcade.Net

'The Ghosts Of Crowley Hall' is a documentary Arron Kasady and a team of other experts set out with a vengeance to make and you see their determination as well as many parts of this old historic building. When the team holds a séance things start to get interesting and are visited first by a man named Alfred and then by a spirit believed to be Leys himself. If you like shows like 'Ghost Hunters' or if you like old abandoned buildings like me this film is for you. It was a little hard to hear some of the reaction bangs but none the less it was exciting to watch. I sincerely hope they go back and see what other things they can find out about this amazing historic place!
